**Students in Grade 5 ADV Math will take the Grade 6 Math SOL*

Overview of Spring Non-Writing SOLs

- ▶ Beginning this spring, grades 3-8 Reading and Math computer adaptive SOL tests may also include off-grade-level content
  - ▷ Tests will primarily include test items that assess content at the student's grade level
  - ▷ Based upon a student's responses to on-grade-level items, they may also be administered some items that assess content that is below or above their grade level. Student responses to off-grade-level items will not determine their pass/fail status, but will be reflected in the vertical scaled score used to determine growth

Understanding Scores

We look at how students score and compare their scores to previous tests to ensure students are making progress. If they are not, we use that data to help plan for how we will support them going forward at Braddock ES.

If your child does not pass the SOL, it does not affect them moving onto the next grade level. However, it means that teachers will be providing specific support in areas that students need. Students may also participate in before or after school interventions.

At Home Support

At Home Support

Testing can be stressful for both kids and adults. We encourage you to help your child be at ease.

- Playing outside
- Positive self-talk
- Deep breathing

At Home Support

You can practice some similar problems to those on the test.
